SLURRRP! The pie eating champion at Crescent playground was Howard Kenny. Here you see the young man as he is about to perform his finishing effort. He won by several bites.

YOUNG TENNIS ENTHUSIASTS watched attentively as Al Jones, of Warren, Ohio, demonstrated the art of the game at a clinic held Sunday on the Beaty courts. The event was sponsored by the Jaycees and Benny Scalise.

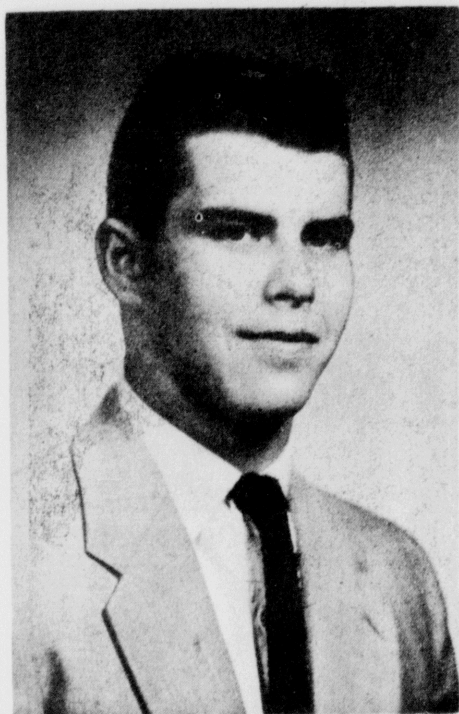

I'M FULL, is the expression shown by the lad at the right.

SUPERVISOR John Stachowiak shouts instructions as Miss Anita Dickerson passes out quarter pieces of pies to South Side youngsters prior to the "pie eating" contest last Friday.

OH WELL, the pie is good anyway.

IN THE AIR FORCE now is James F. Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Rose, 5 Hemlock st. Jim graduated from Warren high school in the Class of 1955 and prior to his enlistment was employed by the New Process Co.

His present address is A/B James F. Rose, AF 13568771; P. O. Box 1510, Flt. 831; Lackland Air Force Base; San Antonio, Texas.

SHOWN AT A RECENT meeting of the Edinboro State Teachers College Board of Trustees and Citizens' Advisory Committee at Edinboro are

Teachers College; and Mrs. Annette Flick, prominent Warren Civic worker who is a member of the college Advisory Committee.

Community Chest Sets Goal Of $66,500

For the benefit of its ten member agencies the Warren Community for the 1956 campaign. This figure is an increase of seven per cent over the 1955 quota and will enable the Chest to allot additional funds to agencies that have increased operating costs.

The budget and campaign dates of October 15 to 22 were established at a meeting of Chest board of directors Monday afternoon. President Marion Pettegrew presided.

The Community Chest agencies are Warren County Council Boy Scouts, Child Health Center, Children's Aid Society, Warren County Council Girl Scouts, Salvation Army, Warren Relief association, Warren Visiting Nurses, Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., and the U.S.O.

Warren Public Schools Open September 5th

The public schools of Warren will open Wednesday, September 5, with an estimated enrollment of 3,732.

These figures, which were released in June, look like this when broken down: Warren high school -- 873, Beaty Jr. high school -- 1172, and the elementary schools -- 1687. The total estimate is 115 over the 1955 enrollment.

All children who are or who will become six years of age before February 1, 1957, may enter first grade on the opening date and children already registered may enter kindergarten. All must be vaccinated.

Additional kindergarten registration will be accepted at East Street, Home Street and McClintock schools, but only those children five years of age by February 1 of next year may enroll.

Pupils enrolled by June, 1956, are now enrolled. Those who have moved into the district during the summer and are entering Warren schools for the first time should enroll at the building they will attend. Pupils from other high schools must submit a copy of credits earned.

All new registrants must submit a certificate of successful vaccination, a birth certificate and the last report card.

All buildings will be open for enrollment on Tuesday morning, September 4, from 9:00 a. m. to 11:00 a. m. At Beaty and Warren high schools principals will enroll new students the entire week of August 27 to August 31.

Sessions at Beaty and high school will be continuous from 8:25 a. m. to 2:50 p. m. Elementary pupils should be in their classrooms at 8:45 a. m. excepting McClintock where, due to the bus from the south side, school begins at 8:30 a. m. The afternoon session starts at 12:45 p. m.

CHAUTAUQUA HIGHLIGHTS

Highlighting the Senior Citizens Day at Chautauqua on Saturday, August 25, will be Ted Malone, nationally known radio personality. This all day affair will be the first of its kind honoring all men and women of the area who are 60 years of age or over.

The program will open with an organ recital by Robert V. Woodside at 10:45 a.m. Morning speakers include Dr. Herbert Gezork and Dr. Albert J. Abrams. James A. Sharp, head of the Jamestown City Recreation Dept., will be master of ceremonies.

In the afternoon Walter Hendl, conductor of the Chautauqua Symphony, will present piano numbers. A varied program including juggling, dancing, accordion numbers, Negro spirituals, and a color ceremony by the Jamestown National Guard will entertain those attending. Mr. Malone will speak at the afternoon program.

It is hoped to make the affair an annual one, attracting senior citizens from a wide area.

HIGHLIGHTING Chautauqua's final week of the season will be Miss Rise Stevens, Metropolitan Opera star. Miss Stevens will sing in recital in the Chautauqua Amphitheater at 8:30 p. m. on Saturday, August 25.

Many unusual honors and firsts are a part of the Rise Stevens career. It was she who became the first American-born opera star to create a world premiere of an Italian opera in Italy itself, it was her role as "Carmen" which made TV history, and it was she again who accomplished the unique feat of singing on the stages of the Metropolitan and La Scala in Milan within 36 hours.

Rise Stevens stands today as one of the most vital and electrifying personalities before the public.

NEXT WEEK On August 28 the Lions Club members of Warren will have an opportunity to hear Dr. Sam Kirkpatrick. His report will be a most unusual and most interesting history of medicine and surgery.

First rule for modern beauty is:
Budget your time to include daily Baths

Recently a famous beauty authority was asked to name the basis of personal charm. She replied: "Daily baths."

Her reasons: "Cleanliness—which necessitates the daily bath—is the first rule of beauty. It's the least expensive beauty rule to follow and the quickest dividend producer."

But you don't obtain lasting benefits from just one bath. Or from occasional baths. Had your beauty bath yet today?

UNADJUSTED BIRDS

We are convinced that the air is full of birds which have not adjusted themselves to modern living. It has been said that animals learn where danger lurks and avoid contact with areas or objects which are apt to terminate their existence. Why then do birds insist on flying in front of cars?

With unlimited air space available they fly low over the road, swoop into the danger zone, and even sit thereon. There was a time when we could understand this attraction, but the equestrian age has shrunk to the bridle path.

A few years ago when there were less cars, the birds seem to avoid the roaring monsters. In late years they have become increasingly difficult to avoid.

Perhaps the stream-lined appearance and the speed of the cars today combine to fool them. At one time a car fifty feet away made an awesome sight, much noise, and took far more time to cover that space than today's vehicles.

Maybe they just don't see us coming, and when they finally do, the current speeds make it a little late. But we still can't understand why they don't develop an instinctive fear of the cement ribbon. Their friends and relatives are killed there and they must have personal experiences of a fearful nature. We certainly have given a few low-ceiling birdies feather-raising calls.

We believe we could have killed a couple dozen birds this summer if we hadn't applied our brakes or swerved our car. We have managed to avoid all of them, but the evidence on the road every day reveals that others didn't make it to the safety of higher levels.

A four-legged animal may be excused for dashing across the road. He has no other way to make it. But why a bird has to ask for trouble at radiator height escapes us.

CLOSE CHAPMAN LAKE

The Chapman lake waters will no longer be open for your pleasure after September 4. On the day following Labor Day it will be closed for the year. However, you still can use the picnic grounds. Roast your corn over a hickory limb, but don't go near the water.

BRIGHTEN THE CORNER

If you are hunting woodchucks these days it is a good idea to brighten the corner where you are with the use of a little red in the right place. About the time the Game Commission was happily announcing that no chuck hunters had been killed this year, two men were fatally shot.

In both cases the hunter thought the victim's head was a woodchuck. The victim in neither case wore a red cap. Sitting around with your head sticking out in this season is asking for it. Cover it with brilliance, and live.

VACUUM YOUR BEES

If the bees ever attempt to take over your premises and you can find no one nor any means to remove them, follow the procedure of a Delaware county housewife. She loaded her cleaner with sealed dust bags and went after the swarm. They soon became uneasy about the rapid disappearance of their fellow honey-makers and took off.

GOOD BUSINESS

The sale of saw timber and other wood products from state game lands really boomed in the year ending May 31, 1956. Over ten million board feet of timber was sold, just about five times the total of 1955. Posts and props sold sent up from 80,000 to 157,000. However, mine timber sales dropped from 598 down to 265, and Christmas trees came down from 1,300 to 991.

The dollars received totaled $189,818. This was about three times last year's $68,868.

NEW HUNTING LICENSES

The 1957 hunting licenses go into effect the first of September and a fresh supply has arrived at the Bob Ritchie's county treasurer office. With your 1956 tag fast becoming out of date, now is the time to buy a new one, especially if you are a chuck hunter.

Echoes From The Past . . .

OUR LEAD PLATE

By Ernest C. Miller

If you could have been watching the place where our Conewango Creek flows into the Allegheny River on July 29, 1749, you would have received the surprise of your life. On that probably hot summer day, there spewed out from the mouth of the Conewango a French military expedition of some size.

This force had left Lachine, near Montreal, June 15 under the command of M. Celoron de Bienville, for the purpose of attempting to establish the sovereignty of France over the Ohio Valley region. For the French, the Ohio Valley and river, which they did not distinguish from the Allegheny, was an essential link between their settlements along the St. Lawrence in Canada and those on the lower Mississippi.

Rumors of the formation of a company to trade throughout the entire Ohio Valley must have reached the French too. This company, formed by Virginians and called the Ohio Company, would be a strong threat to French claims and the influx of more English traders could turn the Indians against the French forever. Drastic action seemed imperative.

While there were only 20 French soldiers in the company, there were 180 Canadians, 30 Iroquois and 25 Abenaki Indians. This group, in twenty canoes, landed at the Chautauqua portage on Lake Erie on July 16, made the difficult portage to Lake Chautauqua, came down the Conewango to the Allegheny, and stopped here to attach the royal arms of France to a large red oak tree standing on the south bank of the river. At the same time, Celoron planted the first of his prepared lead plates at the foot of this tree. Measuring only 7-1/2 x 11 x 1/8 in., it read as follows, in French of course:

In the year 1749, in the reign of Louis XV, King of France, We, Celoron, commanding officer of the detachment sent by the Marquis de La Galissoniere, Captain-General of New France, to re-establish peace in some Indian villages of these Cantons, have buried these plates at the confluence of the Rivers Ohio and Kanaouagan, this twenty-ninth day of July, as a monument of the renewal of the possession which we have taken of the River Ohio, and of all the lands on both sides, up to the source of the said rivers, as the preceding Kings of France have enjoyed, or ought to enjoy, the same, and have maintained themselves there by arms and treaties, and especially by those of Riswick, Utrecht and Aix La Chapelle.

CELORON

Hastening down the Allegheny River, Celoron stopped at the entrance to the Brokenstraw Creek, near present day Irvine, where he found a rough cabin being erected by the Indians for the use of English traders. Celoron expressed surprise at this, though he well knew the English-Indian trade had been going on in this area for years. The Indians told him they would find it nearly impossible to exist if the English traders were eliminated and to this Celoron had no adequate answer.

The expedition continued down the Allegheny, then down the Ohio to the Miami River, and up that stream to the Maumee and back to Montreal by way of Lake Erie. They planted at least six lead plates on their journey. One buried at the mouth of the Muskingum was found by boys in swimming in 1798 and is owned today by the Antiquarian Society of Massachusetts. Another one, near the mouth of the Great Kanawha River, was found in 1846 at Point Pleasant, Virginia (now West Virginia.)

And now where do you think the Warren lead plate might be? Remember that Indians saw the French bury it 'midst considerable pomp and ceremony; it would serve little purpose beneath the ground. If the French really expected it to stay buried they were seemingly immature or stupid; on the other hand, if they planted it with the definite expectation that it would be dug up, they were touched with the mark of genius.

If, and that is a mighty big IF, the Indians didn't promptly dig it up, and maybe melted it down for bullets, then the chances are it stayed buried until the spring of 1827 when the river was exceptionally high and the ice thick. That year, the great red oak tree selected by Celoron, was torn up by its roots and laid in the river for a year or two until a later flood carried it away.

The Field Corps for Historical Research, a Canton, Ohio, group, who use special mine detectors and other equipment for locating historical objects of metal beneath ground or water, recently visited Warren and investigated the possibilities of searching for our lead plate. But their verdict was that it would be useless and that the plate has disappeared, doubtless forever.

If you can find it, your name will go down in the record books of historical societies and posterity will acclaim you a wise and lucky person.

This is the first time that both of these Celoron plates have been shown together.

Found at the mouth of the Muskingum River in 1798. The plate was partly destroyed before its value was recognized. Now owned by the American Antiquarian Society who gave permission for the use of this picture.

Television and Radio

By John Crosby

MINIMUM EXPOSURE

Sunday night Frank Sinatra monopolized the three television networks almost as thoroughly as the Democrats last week and the Republicans this week. Mr. Sinatra was plugging a cowboy picture he produced and starred in and one can hardly blame him for taking advantage of all the networks if they were generous enough to turn the joints over to him.

And the Sinatra name probably attracted a great many viewers, so the networks are not altogether foolish in agreeing to his nonsense. It was only the viewers who were wasting their time. Sinatra, one of the greatest all-around performers we have, did no acting, no singing, no anything. He had a case of laryngitis, it was explained, and could do no more than walk on.

On the Steve Allen Show, he toyed with a cup of coffee while Mr. Allen mouthed the words to "A Foggy Day in London Town," as one of Mr. Sinatra's records was played. "I guess that was kind of a silly bit we just did," said Mr. Allen. It sure was.

However, it wasn't any sillier than what Sinatra did on the Ed Sullivan Show, where Red Skelton was handling the affair for the injured columnist. Skelton used the singer as a straight man in some old, old, old and interminable vaudeville routines. Then he read a long piece from "Collier's" about Mr. Sinatra, while Mr. S. registered humility. It was real dull.

On his way from the Allen show to the Sullivan show, Sinatra had managed to drop in at ABC too for a few fast words with Donald Woods, host of Famous Film Festival.

There is a word for this sort of thing that has come into great fashion in the last couple of years. It's "exposure." The very use of the word and its wide popularity in the upper echelons of television is indicative of what is happening in show business.

Years ago an entertainer was hired for a performance. Then as the extent of his performance dwindled, he was said to make an appearance. Now it's exposure -- a word heretofore associated with the click of a camera shutter. And that's about all you get, too.

You find actors all over the place worried about their "exposure." If they don't get enough exposure, or don't get any, it's supposed to be bad for their health. If they get too much -- like sunburn -- it's ruinous. A network program is automatically an awful lot of exposure, so you're supposed to cover up, revealing as little skin as possible. That way you won't get burned. As exposures go, Sinatra's was down to about the irreducible minimum; of course, he might have phoned in or sent a letter. This way we could at least look at him, so we should all be properly grateful.

On the same night, Alcoa Theater presented "The Big Vote," by David Karp. In the light of a whole week of political convention which preceded it and another one to follow it, this was really flying in the face of the percentages.

But then television has always operated on the theory that you can't get enough of a good thing. When we have Christmas, brother, we celebrate it for weeks -- at least on television. When politics comes along, again we get a heaping plateful until no one can look the stuff in the face again for weeks.

Mr. Karp's little essay was a simple, straightforward drama about an old line district leader who operates on the patronage level, and a rising young politician who believes in taking the issues to the voters. As a lesson in politics, it was rather rudimentary, but not much more so than some of the things that have come out of Chicago and San Francisco. As the old line politician, Ed Begley gave a performance of great solidity and power, and that alone made the hour well worth watching.

SERVE!
The Jaycees are wasting no time about exciting the interest of young players in the new tennis courts. A clinic has been held and a tournament is shaping up this Saturday. We don't fathom how they are going to run a tennis tournament off in one day, but youth is sturdy and full of wind. If the field is small they may manage it.
But the important point is that the game is being pushed. There is nothing like competition to help participants of any sport get more out of it. The method of playing becomes more important and improvement in the technique of slamming a ball around provides greater satisfaction than casual, sloppy play.
The courts have been very busy since they were completed and the Jaycees should be given a salute for providing an area that provides Warren with year-around pleasure, a fresh air variety of the healthiest kind. The boy or girl who is in poor condition will do very poorly in either skating or tennis. They require good legs and strong lungs.
As long as we have young people using the play grounds with sufficient seriousness to want to play their sports well, a healthy America has a fair chance of materializing.

AND GOLF, TOO
Also on Saturday will be the Kinzua Valley Golf course's first annual tournament. Here again you will find many new golfers who never have had to keep their score very seriously. Suddenly they will learn that every stroke, every whiff, every unplayable lie, every lost ball, and every rule is a major part of their game if they are to play it right.
The whiffer who has been conceding himself a stroke here and there will abruptly learn that the game isn't played that way for keeps. And once he starts working to earn the low score rather than give himself a game, the sport will mean more and his satisfaction will be greater.
You only kid yourself in these games, and in many others, as well as other fields of endeavor. A little application, a bit of work, a mite of concentration, and the results are satisfying . . . and the steps quite healthful.

PARDEZ MOI
In our bit on the current Tidioute pageant that is being held this week as a part of its sesquicentennial observance, this column left the impression that Helen Morrow and Dick Rapp had teamed up to direct the production. What we actually said was that they put together a pageant.
To cut it down finer, as was done in last week's feature on the pageant, Helen wrote and directed the pageant. Dick Rapp directed the choreography.

AHH, RISE
This week you can both see it and hear it . . . beauty that is, Rise Stevens will be on the program at Chautauqua, Saturday night. She presents a husky sized recital of top numbers. The Metropolitan

Ike May Fight

By Doris Fleeson

SAN FRANCISCO.--President Eisenhower is mad at the Democrats for their sharp attacks on him at Chicago. He is not too happy about the emphasis here on the losing fight against Vice-President Richard M. Nixon and the vaudeville aspects of the GOP convention program.

He wants to start a brisk counterattack on the opposition, and he thinks it's better for his own party if he moves into the limelight quickly.

This is the background White House aides give for the President's decision to come here a day early and "see friends." They positively deny that he will offer the convention any "list" of Vice-Presidents who would suit him.

It is clear that unless the President acts boldly to stop Nixon, that movement is dead. A curious alliance of Thomas E. Dewey and the Taft Republicans -- mutual pet hates -- has the votes to renominate Nixon against anything short of an Eisenhower panzer drive against the Vice-President.

That alliance has interesting possibilities for the future should fate and the November election propel Nixon into the Presidency. It is secure for the present.

The better Republican politicians have vetoed suggestions for a staged "open race" for the Vice-Presidency. "The American people can spot a phony," said National Committeeman Darby from Kansas. "Who would they be kidding?"

The GOP made one important political decision in an otherwise dull day when it framed a compromise civil-rights plank only slightly stronger than that of the Democrats.

Many Northern Republicans had argued for an all-out civil-rights declaration affording massive help to a drive to win the big states by attracting their minorities. But Southern Republicans appealed to the White House and word came that a compromise was to be effected.

Since Democrats are confident they will win all the South next fall -- and most observers agree -- they will regard this as a break for them nationally. It reflects Republican reluctance to fish for cut bait in the matter of the South.

Republicans have not done the hard spade work there to develop a real organization, capable of courthouse rough-and-tumble which alone can build a party. Yet they resist advice to let the South go in favor of a wholehearted minority appeal in the pivotal states.

The President's motives, as described here, make sense to those who have long observed him in political action.

Mr. Eisenhower has shown a remarkable talent for sensing when the Democrats have got hold of a good issue or climate of opinion and then moving halfway to meet them. He is never rigid or doctrinaire. To him, steamroller is a bad word.

He can be expected to realize that the Democrats had good luck at Chicago in creating a sporting atmosphere of a fair fight and clean victory. He also can be expected to win at the dispatches from here which are about evenly divided between straight stories about the Vice-Presidential situation and quips about open decisions, secretly arrived at.

The President also is sensitive to criticism from whatever source. Adlai Stevenson and others gave him a taste of things to come at Chicago in a manner for which the Democrats in Congress did little to prepare him. A desire to fight back forthwith would be in keeping with his past reactions.

Last Friday the champs took Craft's by a 6-1 score.

INTERMEDIATE LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

CONVENTIONISMS

We haven't seen many hours of televised convention programs (though we've seen enough), but during the small time we were eyes on screen CBS led the pack. They seemed to have the most top-flight newsmen in the best places, talking to the leaders who counted.

Up to Thursday, 93,831,000 had seen the Democrats perform on tv. One survey claimed that 84 per cent of the homes had tuned in. The number of viewers is a bit above the total of 1952, though on some corresponding evenings it is believed to be a bit lower.

Neither convention has had much to offer in the way of competition or the increased number of sets would have put the number far above 1952.

Another acceptance speech will be brought to you Sunday night by WBEN. He will be Eric Haas, presidential nominee for the Socialist Labor Party.

And on September 4, at 11:45 p. m., CBS radio will bring the exclusive acceptance speech of Darlington Hoope. He is the presidential nominee of the Socialists of the U.S.A.

DIAL SPINNERS

KIRK DOUGLAS continues to do the chores for Ed Sullivan. An injured lung will keep the Sunday night emcee off the screen until late September.

DANNY KAYE will be seen on the Edward R. Murrow See It Now as his debut to tv. He will do a ninety minute show or two one-hour shows, with his 50,000 miles as a United Nations Ambassador at Large providing the material.

RADIO ADVERTISING value continues to drop. This past year nearly every medium of advertising showed an increase in price. Standard Rate and Data Service says that so far this year tv rates have averaged an increase of 21.6 per cent. Newspaper rates in nearly five hundred papers increased 11.4 per cent. But radio averaged a decrease of 6.7 per cent. And you can be sure if they could get it they wouldn't be asking for less. With tv stealing the airwave audiences, radio value has hit a low plane.

A NEW LINE of transistorized radio sets will be out soon. The Trav-Ler Radio Corp. has bought CBS-Columbia equipment and will emphasize the new developments. They also are buying tv production equipment.

ASTHMA is the subject for the University of Buffalo Medical round table this Saturday.

OLD TIMERS will be on screen before the game of the week this Saturday. They will include Joe DiMaggio, Leo Durocher, Lefty Gomez, and others who will be present for an Old Timers game. The main go will see the Yanks play host to Chicago. A big one right now.

STRANGE DEFENSE, show on the Play House of Stars, Friday night, will concern a man who is mourning the death of his wife. He is confronted with the claims of another woman who says she is his wife and that it was her twin who died. To complicate this, the woman making the claim also is faced with a murder charge. That should give David Brian something to puzzle out and a plot to keep you fascinated for an hour.

JULY FAVORITES in the Buffalo station area as far as teen-agers are concerned included Elvis Presley in three categories, singer, recording artist, and favorite record (Hound Dog). Teresa Brewer continued as the favorite girl singer. The Platters were the favorite local group, Lawrence Welk the band.

And here is one that may amaze you. Inasmuch as the survey is made by TV Dance Party that naturally is rated as their favorite show. However, their second choice is the 11 p. m. news and their third is the 11:10 p. m. weather!

JUST IN CASE you haven't noticed, GOP convention time starts at 6:30 each evening instead of 6:00. We also are asked to tell you that the correct spelling of the keynote speaker's name is Gov. Arthur B. Langlie. The program must have been in error.

POLKA TIME on WGR Friday night at 10. American Ukrainian youth dancers will be featured with Junior Zielinsky as emcee.

TALENT for the Sullivan show this week will be provided by the U. S. Navy. This is the third year that the Navy's "top talent" has been so featured.

A $50,000 PURSE will make the Saratoga handicap Saturday the top race for Saratoga Park. It takes off on tv at 5.

Observations
By Bob Walsh
BEHIND THE BOWS
When it comes time for the official ceremonies involving new facilities we always are struck by the absence of the many who probably had more to do with the hard work of accomplishment than any of the ribbon-cutters. In fact, very often among those taking the bows and posing for pictures you will find many who have been the strongest opponents of such progress.
There is no reason to deny the Jaycees credit for raising the money and building the tennis courts on Beaty field. After many years of talk and no progress, they rolled up their sleeves and did it. Thanks to them we now have courts.
But, oh, the maneuvering that was required down through the years to reach even the point where borough leaders would accept such a project.
At one time a drive was made to raise money for courts to be built exactly where the present ones are located. The money sat in the bank for years with nothing happening. The borough failed to cut away a piece of sod.
Two or three years ago, Councilman John Carbon decided his parks department could start the courts and that help might develop. He was right. The area was cleared and worked over. Some fill was brought in. Then the money ran out. But the unfinished courts sat there staring the town in the face.
Big John's psychology finally paid off. Citizens began to ask when the courts were going to be completed. Others asked about the eyesore on Beaty field. What was going to be done about it? The questions piled up into a demand and the Jaycees, always looking for community projects to do, moved in.
This actually is a small part of the recreational story in Warren. We wouldn't attempt to do it justice in a quick toss of this nature. It is documented, recorded, and ready for the telling. It is political dynamite. It is the unveiling of the facile in tongue. It is the story behind the story.
It would make a good play and has been roughed into one. It would make a good book, and has been outlined. But at this stage we do not know the finish. What good a play or a book without an ending?
Perhaps the true ending will make plays, books, and "our town" commentary unnecessary. At least it may provide a happy conclusion for those whose stock in trade is fiction, based on truth.

MAY BE CLOSE ELECTION
For a few days there it looked as though the Democrats might come down with a bad case of delirium Trumans. But they shook it off and now may be far stronger than when the convention started.
When the former president lost his power in the party, all the issues of the 1952 campaign disappeared. If we didn't respect Mr. Truman as a real fighting man, we would think the political fox even planned it that way.
As it now stands the Democrats have two proven vote-getters, two tough campaigners. They represent a new look in the party. They owe nothing to anyone. They will have a major share of organized labor behind them and a big chunk of the farm vote. They aren't in as bad shape as some delightfully predict.
President Eisenhower hasn't lost his charm. He still is the king of the polling ring. But he can't be as strong as he was four years ago. He has served a term. No matter how he served it, there would be many followers who would not be satisfied. He has lost them.
He is doubly sick. The wise voter knows he is voting for the vice president when he supports the GOP ticket this year. The odds say that the vice president will be the next president if the Republicans win. This will sober a few and cause them to hesitate. Among them will be many who will not support such a ticket.

The big campaign to get out the vote has not developed this year as it did in 1952. It was a record vote because millions were spent just to get those independent thinkers to the polls. It was thought they would vote for a change. They did!
But will they this year? Will they vote at all? Many won't! Will they still vote for Ike? Many won't.
At this point it looks like a real close one could develop. And for the wise heads it will be Stevenson vs. Nixon. Take your choice.

DOG HOUSING
When Councilman Carbon at the last meeting of Warren borough council urged that suitable housing be provided for stray canines if the new pound is erected on the airport property, he had a good thought.

No pet should be dumped into an open pen with a miscellaneous collection of other dogs.
The housing should be clean and the dogs should be kept apart as much as it is practical. Perhaps there will be crowded moments when this is not altogether possible, but the normal population should be so housed.
Valuable dogs can be lost to the owner if they are placed next to diseased animals. And the health of the dog is not the only risk. There are diseases among dogs which must be controlled. They should not be spread through carelessness on the part of the borough.
The dog that picks up a disease in the pound does more than suffer for his owners' delinquency. He takes the disease home. He also carries it to the neighbors' dogs. A pound can be a sorry contribution to a community's health.

FALSE HOPES RAISED BY ARTHRITIS ADS

The Federal Trade Commission warned the public against taking false hope in arthritis and rheumatism medicines advertised as cure-alls.

"Firms advertising ineffective medicines as cures induce sufferers to delay proper treatment of this disease," Commission Chairman John W. Gwynne declared. "This delay," he emphasized, "is not only detrimental to the individual but is injurious to the public health."

While most drugs are not misrepresented, he added, new medicines are introduced on the market all the time, and those falsely advertised must be acted on promptly.

In the past year and a half for example, the Commission has taken action against ten firms for claiming their products are effective treatments for arthritis and rheumatism or the pains that accompany them.

In seven of these cases the firms agreed to stop claiming their products are effective except as temporary relief from minor aches and pains. In the eighth, a contested case, the Commission issued a similar order. The two others must not advertise that their products afford any relief at all.

Before the Commission took action, most of these products were hailed as either the result of "amazing" new formulas or the discovery of equally amazing ingredients.

In one instance a firm's advertisement exclaimed: At last -- just released!" a tablet containing "an exclusive" ingredient, a "Blessed pain-relieving element . . . combined with other medically proven ingredients."

In another case the manufacturer proclaimed: "Victims of crippling arthritis, rheumatism and neuritis pain can take joyous new hope from announcement of dramatic success with a new formula which combines 4 drugs into one tablet capable of relieving agonizing pain . . ."

Both firms are now under Commission orders, enforceable by fines of up to $5,000 per violation for future violations, prohibiting claims that their products are new, or that they will relieve "severe pains" of arthritis and rheumatism or have any therapeutic effect except temporary relief of the minor pains.

Commission staff scientists state there is no product the public can buy over the counter which can cure any arthritic or rheumatic condition. In many of the advertised cure-alls, the staff states, the ingredients which effect some temporary relief of pain are salicylates, the most common of which is aspirin.

Not all of the ten firms relied entirely on claims that their product is a cure. In one case, the Commission had charged, the firm represented, contrary to fact, that its tablets will erect a "pain-block" in the thalamus (at the base of the brain) to prevent pain impulses from reaching the brain. The firm also claimed that these tablets would "expel pain continuing pain-wastes." This is untrue, the Commission had charged, pain does not cause "pain-wastes." The firm admitted all the material allegations of the complaint and took a Com-

Another firm undertook to give its product a wider appeal and claimed it as a treatment for convulsions, rheumatism, erysipelas, typhoid fever, heart trouble, diabetes, ulcers, epilepsy and asthma. The Commission's order states the preparation is of no value in treating any of these ailments.

Still another variation were the claims made for metal inner soles. "Why suffer?" the arthritic patient was asked. These metal inner soles "have brought relief to thousands of arthritis, lumbago and rheumatism sufferers. Why not you?" The firm agreed not to advertise that its product is of any benefit for any arthritic or rheumatic condition.

Most of these firms, Chairman Gwynne noted, voluntarily abandoned advertising objected to by the Commission. But, if necessary, he emphasized, the Commission does not hesitate to use all lawful means to stop deception of the public.

For example, the Commission earlier this summer petitioned a Federal Court to prosecute a concern and its officers for criminal contempt.

In the petition the Commission charges that the company has continued "willfully and knowingly" to misrepresent its arthritis and rheumatism tablets in "flagrant violation" of the Court's decree affirming a Commission order.

the contest was part of a plan to promote "this fine line of distinctive time-pieces . . ."

In fact, the examiner ruled, the watch is not a fine precision watch and actually has a retail value of less than $8.00 and cost the company only $3.25. The contest was not part of a plan to promote the watches, which, in fact, did not exist when the contest began, he said.

The examiner noted that approximately 140,000 persons paid an aggregate of $1,475,000 to the company to enter the contest.

The order of the Commission prohibits the following claims:

That the company is engaged in any business other than operating a puzzle contest unless such is the fact;

That the contest is part of a nation-wide program to advertise or introduce merchandise;

That the quality of the merchandise is superior to what it is in fact;

That "Cressine" watches are dependable, distinctive, precision-made, or dust-proof, or are fine watches made to give years of service;

That merchandise will be distributed to participants immediately after submission of all the puzzles and the fee unless such is the fact.

FALSE PUZZLE CONTEST

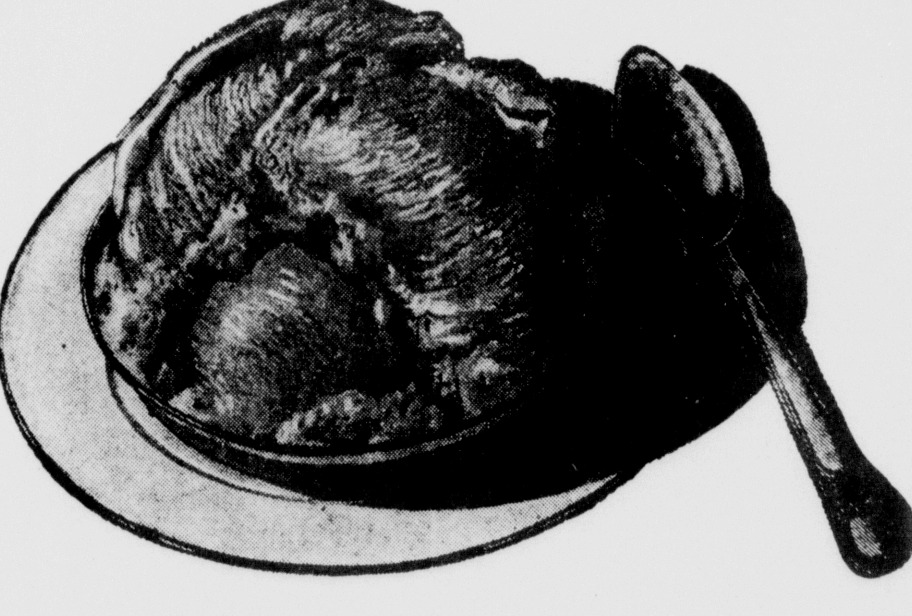

The Federal Trade Commission today approved an order prohibiting Rogers-United Corp., 352 Fourth Ave., New York City, from using false advertising to publicize its puzzle contests.

The company did not appeal Hearing Examiner Loren H. Laughlin's initial decision that it has induced members of the public to enter a puzzle contest and pay a fee for doing so under an erroneous impression, created by the company's advertising, of the nature of the contest. The Commission's adoption of this order gives the company 30 days in which to file a report of compliance.

The company engaged in advertising for contestants who paid $11.25 to complete a set of puzzles, thereby gaining a chance to win $100,000 in cash prizes. The company represented that every contestant would receive a fine precision "Cressine" watch and that

Saturday's contest showed Elks clean-up man Drexler hitting and scoring safely twice to pace the plate battle. The winning run was brought home by Ken Thompson's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth. Dave Lopez was the winning moundsman.

The game broke a two-way tie for fourth place in the circuit.

After a picnic lunch the boys presented their manager, Louis Cederquist, with an initialed billfold, inscribed from "The Team". The remainder of the afternoon was spent at Mid-

Nixon's New Look

By Thomas L. Stokes

SAN FRANCISCO.--Behind the gaudy Hollywood facade of happiness, confidence, peace, progress and prosperity, which has been specially built for the Republican convention here, there is among party managers a contrasting nervousness, uneasiness and anxiety as they look ahead to the election for which this is the prelude.

They still expect victory, but are less sure of it, and less sure of a big margin than they were a year ago.

Not only do they find themselves on the defensive in a Presidential election for the first time in 24 years, but they are confronted with uncertainties which, strangely enough, grow out of the very certainty the delegates came here from all over the country to ratify.

That is the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket.

They cannot talk or resolute away

CHRISTINE BARNES

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Barnes, Lawrence, Mass., announce the engagement of their daughter, Christine, to Louis Eugene Rieg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene K. Rieg, 320 Penna. ave. E., Warren.

Miss Barnes was a 1951 graduate of St. Marys high school and Mr. Rieg was graduated from Warren high school in 1948, Notre Dame in 1952, and is presently working toward his PH. D. degree at the University of Pittsburgh.

A winter wedding is being planned.

the fact of their complete dependence for victory on one man, the head of the ticket -- the President -- nor that they have in that man an issue over his health which is a factor of as yet indeterminate influence, but ultimately could weigh heavily with the voters.

It is the President's health that has concentrated attention on the second half of the ticket that is to be ratified here, Vice-President Richard M. Nixon, who will thus be put into the line of succession to the White House so far as Republicans are concerned.

That accounts for the uneasiness found among many delegates here, reflecting uneasiness among many voters, which adds up to produce the fear among many voters, which adds up to produce the fear among party managers that the Vice-President may drive away many votes, just as Harold Stassen is claiming.

The dour Minnesotan has become a sort of guilty conscience personified and incarnate for the doubters who will be relieved when the balloting for Vice-President is done, and the Vice-President is renominated, and Harold Stassen is safely out of sight in some far place or other promoting disarmament.

The hidden misgivings, which some politically sensitive delegates share with the party managers, are not assuaged, but rather magnified, by the recognition that the Democrats, all in all, did a very good job for themselves in their Chicago convention last week and offer in the Adlai Stevenson-Estes Kefauver combination perhaps the strongest ticket that was possible and one that might give the Republicans plenty of trouble.

Worries and problems that disturb Republican managers are revealed in what is happening here.

For example, we can read in the keynote address to the convention by Governor Arthur B. Langlie of Washington a confession of something of which we are aware -- that is, the dependence of the party upon the President and its failure, even after four years, to establish confidence in itself among the American people.

The Governor played down the party and stressed the appeal of the President to all Americans. Reviving the "crusade" which we heard so much about in the 1952 campaign, he said, significantly:

"That crusade began in Chicago four years ago. Some might feel that the crusade belongs to us, as members of the Republican party. This is not the case. Instead, our party is only the instrument that gave it voice--and form -- and opportunity."

And again on the same general theme:

"We meet here as Republicans, but at this convention we are being watched and listened to by millions of other Americans who are vitally concerned in what we say and do. It is for them that we speak and work, and it is by them that we will be judged."

We have no better weathervane of the anxiety that seethes under the surface of this convention than the activity of the Vice-President, himself the cause of most of it.

He dashes hither and yon, flitting from one group to another, on a mission not only to appease the dubious and win friends, but to try to dispel the picture of him presented by one speaker after another at last week's Democratic convention in Chicago, including his opposite number, Senator Estes Kefauver.

The Democratic nominee said "the function of the Vice-President should not be that of a political sharp-shooter for his party" and "should not be that of providing the smear under the protection of the President's smiles."

We are being told quietly here that Dick Nixon is going to be a changed man henceforth. We are hearing about the "new Nixon" as he will be unveiled in the campaign.

It is plain that he is in the process of washing out his mouth with soap for all the slanders he delivered against the Democrats in 1952 and 1954 -- or so we might judge from his description of Democrats at last week's convention as "loyal Americans." He got that off in a talk at a breakfast given by Governor Christian Herter of Massachusetts.

"Loyal Americans!" That is, indeed, a concession.

But it probably comes too late.

A REPEAT PERFORMANCE of Othello was done this summer by Raymond Nichols, who played the part for the Warren Players last season. This summer, he and Kay Costly, also cast by the Players as Desdemona, played their roles again for the Bushkill Playhouse, described as the most beautiful summer theater in the United States. Situated near Stroudsburg in the Pocono area, it has been operated by Edith O'Hara, of Warren.

Mrs. O'Hara and Maritza Morgan directed the Warren group's presentation of "Othello". Mrs. O'Hara used the two Warren performers and refreshed it for a week's run on the professional stage. Both Warren players earned the acclaim of the audience and the critics.
